

Prometheus Journal

Johns Hopkins University

Prometheus is a national undergraduate philosophy journal published by undergraduate students at Johns Hopkins University. The purpose of the journal is to promote philosophic discourse of the highest standard by offering students an opportunity to engage in open discussion, participate in the production and publication of an academic journal, and establish a community of aspiring philosophers. Each year, Prometheus publishes quality undergraduate papers in philosophy. Each issue contains a selection of essays on various philosophic topics. Prometheus has decided to move forward with the publication of the Journal in an online-only format. Prometheus accepts submissions through January 26th, 2018, with decisions to be expected by mid-spring, and publication occurring the following fall. Individuals may submit multiple pieces to Prometheus, and are welcome to submit those pieces to other publications. However, individuals may only accept publication at one journal. Please inform Prometheus as soon as your paper has been accepted elsewhere.

Please make sure to follow all of the directions stated here if you are interested in submitting one of your philosophy papers to Prometheus.

Deadline: Wednesday, January 26th, 2018

Book Review & Interview Submissions

If you are interested in writing a review on an article, book, or essay, or conduct and write an interview for Prometheus, please email us at editors@prometheus-journal.com with a proposed book (must be published within the last twelve months) or interviewee. Editors have full discretion in the final publication of book reviews and interviews.

Essay Submission

Prometheus accepts undergraduate papers on all philosophical topics. Essays written for classes, honors theses, and independent work are welcome. Multiple submissions are allowed, but you may only accept publication at one journal.

Please make sure to read and follow all the submission requirements. We cannot guarantee your paper will be read if you fail to follow all the requirements:

1. You must be an undergraduate or a graduating senior.
2. You may submit multiple pieces to Prometheus, and you are welcome to submit those pieces to other publications.
3. Submissions should be 10-30 double-spaced pages in MLA format with proper citations. Essays must be the original work of the author. If your essay is shorter than 10 pages and you still wish to submit your essay, email one of the editor-in-chiefs for further information.
4. Submit an electronic copy of your essay to editors@prometheus-journal.com in either .doc or .docx format. If your paper relies on figures, images, or any similar media, please send all such files as their own attachments, not simply embedded in the document.
5. Please attach a cover page in a SEPARATE DOCUMENT with the following information:
 - a. Name
 - b. University or College
 - c. Major or Degree
 - d. Year of Expected Graduation
 - e. Email
 - f. Phone Number
 - g. Address

DO NOT INCLUDE ANY PERSONAL INFORMATION ON THE PAPER ITSELF. Please include a short (100-200 words) abstract at the beginning of your paper.

For any other inquiries about submission or the publication status of your essay, please email us at editors@prometheus-journal.com. Website: <http://prometheus-journal.com>
