Faith Community Directory 2023-2024

Most recently updated January 9, 2024

This directory contains faith communities chosen for proximity to the college and religious variety. Please note that the presence of a community on the list is not an endorsement by the Office of Integrated Wellness or chaplain's office. Check out this resource for some suggested safety guidelines when exploring faith communities:

<https://chaplaincy.tufts.edu/wp-content/uploads/Mind-Control-Group-Brochure-PDF.pdf>

This document also contains general web resources on each faith. Check the Albion College spiritual life webpages to learn about student-led faith-based groups and communities on campus. For a more interactive exploration of different religious traditions, contact the assistant director for spiritual wellness for a conversation and to gain access to the interactive "Spiritual Playground" online.

If you are a member of the Albion College community and have feedback, need assistance selecting a faith community, or would like to request that a faith community be listed in this directory, please contact the assistant director for spiritual wellness at 517-629-0492 or chaplain@albion.edu.

*Note: Because Christianity is the most commonly practiced faith in Albion, most of the local communities listed are Christian. This does not imply that the other faiths, including Judaism, Islam, Buddhism, Jainism, Wicca, and many more, are less important—known communities are simply more likely to be further away and fewer in number.

Tips on Visiting New Communities

When you are planning to visit a house of worship that is different from your own, it is recommended that you research what cultural practices to expect ahead of time. Many houses of worship have particular customs related to gender, age, and belief. If you identify with a more culturally prominent faith tradition in the U.S., such as Protestant Christianity, especially if you experience societal privilege because of a factor like race, citizenship status, or gender, it is important that you do some research before visiting more marginalized communities in order to avoid unintentionally disrespecting their members. It is okay to ask questions and make mistakes—making an effort to listen and understand goes a long way!

You may contact the assistant director for spiritual wellness for further information, assistance in communicating with an organization, or resources on preparing for a visit – 517-629-0492 or chaplain@albion.edu.
